

The Glory of Maternity.

Nature, if left alone, will care for itself; this might have been true at some prehistoric time, but since for ages it has not been left alone, but has been bound down and fettered by the observations and mandates of society, it can no longer care for itself.

At no time does the truth of this appeal to us more strongly than at that period of a woman's life when she is about to become a mother.

Nature must be assisted at this crisis, and for this very contingency has been devised that the muscles and tissues imprisoned and weakened as they have been by the dress of our higher civilization, may fulfill without undue suffering and possible lasting harm, the functions for which the Creator intended them.

Mother's Friend by its kindly offices softens and relaxes these parts and enables the mother to be, to pass through the parturient period and actual crisis with practically no suffering to herself and an easy delivery of her offspring. It is applied externally as a massage, and is a non-detracting, soothing, and most efficacious liniment. $1.00. All druggists. Our book "Motherhood" sent free on request.

Music as a Profession.

Unless a man is rich he ought to be regarded as a criminal if he permits his sons or daughters to become musicians. In the musical profession there are a few prizes not of the largest, but for the largest number of interpretative artists the life is one of drudgery—the drudgery of learning, the drudgery of pushing oneself into notice and after all the continual drudgery of playing or singing just the music the public wants. I recommend no one to enter such a profession unless he or she loves music to such a degree that the drudgery is a pleasure.—John F. Runciman in Saturday Review.

The Journal's Daily Fashion Feature

A FETTERING BUT SIMPLE EVENING GOWN.

An embroidered batiste flouncing is cleverly used for this fetching evening gown, and is combined with a silk wrap batiste of the same shade. The flouncing is employed to drape the bodice in berth form, a continuous effect being produced in the draping of the bodice at the armhole, and the smart way on which the sleeve is mantled. Strands of agate beads, with little crystal rondels between each bead, are used in place of shoulder straps, since the sleeves are permitted to drop considerably off the shoulder, and ribbon bows are used to catch the flounced fullness on the arm. The skirt is an exceedingly simple affair, the top part circular, and fitted with scant shirring at the back hand, a broad double-box pleat occupying the back breadth. The flouncing is applied with a ruffled ribbon heading, and slopes up gracefully to the back; the underskirt being supplied with a Paquin flounce that makes the sheer outer material stand well out from the feet, a desideratum in a dancing frock.

A HOME ON ESCAMBIA BAY

INTERESTING DESCRIPTION OF SUMMER COMFORT AND JOYS IN FLORIDA.

Avondale, Aug. 15.—Thinking a short description of our home on Escambia bay at Avondale will be read with interest by some of The Journal readers, I take pleasure in writing it. Avondale is situated on the east side of Escambia bay where fish and fun are in plenty.

The home of Mrs. N. E. Jennings is fifteen or twenty feet from the water's edge. A long wharf runs out and there we catch fine trout and red fish.

The beach is beautiful, and the trees are something grand, as they tower above all with the long sweeping Spanish moss clinging so gracefully. When I look at them I almost feel inclined to be a tree worshiper and do homage to the spirit of the trees. In the branches of these grand old trees has for many years been the favorite place for birds nests, and in the morning their mating song is harmonious with jubilation nature.

At certain times of the year large numbers of quail come with their timid broods around the place and the sweet pathetic cry "Bob White" is often heard.

O. E. Jennings has a very large gill net above all with the help of three men catches fish in abundance. He salts them down in barrels and kits. Mr. Jennings has been in bad health for several years and it is surprising to see how he improves while here. His father, J. S. Jennings, spent two weeks with us here. When he first came he was very feeble and could scarcely walk in the house. He returned home yesterday and as he was ready to leave I heard him challenge a young bayman for a foot race. No doubt but this is a noted place for health as sickness is seldom known here. The water is pure and seems to contain some mineral, iron and sulphur.

Another place owned by Mrs. Jennings is situated on Trout Bayou several hundred yards above the place now occupied by her. At the mouth of the Bayou is a small, grassy island, situated all around the Bayou are beautiful homes. 'Tis a pretty sight to see the many boats as there they are built and repaired as 'tis a safe harbor for them. To see them with their new snow-white sails and gaily painted hulls it makes one think of gigantic white winged birds hovering over the water.

Chas. Nichols has in his charge seven dozen alligators eggs now ready to hatch in a sand incubator. I wonder what he will do with them. Now, girls, if you want a pet, come to see Mr. Nichols. Our neighbors are of the best and so very generous. They all seem to realize that arithmetic says divide. They do likewise and we reap the benefit.

Peaches are very fine, also pears and grapes.

Joe Lee and family called last evening and we were treated to a very nice concert by his daughters.

Wild flowers of different hue and nature are quite a spontaneous growth as they fill all space with cluster and foliage of magic beauty. We enjoy the sunsets here, as Old Sol in his sinking state throws golden rays beyond the trees and clouds. Nothing could be more grand or glorious than our sunsets on the water.

Bathing here is excellent. Our neighborhood will soon be business

A number of Millview people are looking forward to a trip to the Gulf Labor Day.

Mrs. Cowley and little son were visitors in Pensacola one evening last week.

like as oyster boats will soon throng the bay. Oysters are plentiful. If we want them for breakfast we take a skiff and crab net and get them ourselves.

I must not forget to mention the crabs and flounders. One would have to be here to appreciate the crabs. They are so large and numerous, and flounders—well, I can only say, one evening last week at three o'clock we caught twenty-five and saw a hundred more we did not catch.

Our nearest neighbors are four dear, old ladies. I don't know what we would do without them for they are always our refuge in case of squalls.

We seldom have them only when little Clyde Jackson gets a switching.

I ought to speak a good word for the cat fish, but an old lady told me not to mention them; I suppose she did not want it to be known they were here, but let me tell you all there are plenty of them right here.
